Decision Memo Guidelines

Generally, a decision memo is a very short and extremely concise document that summarizes a policy problem, briefly considers policy options, and makes a recommendation to a decision maker. Your decision memo will be based on the information in your policy report.

The decision memo should be two pages, single spaced, with no references or footnotes. Use the Pennock chapter on OAKS as guidance.

Outline

Your decision memo should follow the outline below and contain each of the following elements. Use the following headings in your memo. I strongly recommended using the example outline in Pennock on pg 179.

The decision memo should have the following heading:

TO: Decision maker that is the intended audience

FROM: Your Name

SUBJECT: Policy issue you are addressing

DATE: Due date of the assignment

Executive Summary

A brief abstract outlining what's in your memo, including your policy recommendation.

Background

A brief background about the problem. Use information from the Introduction and Problem Definition and Policy History and Mapping sections of your report.

Alternatives

Consider three policy alternatives to address the problem. Take information from the Policy Alternatives section of your report.

Recommendation

Make a recommendation of one of the three policy alternatives. Draw from the Recommendation section of your report.
